FOR JUST CAUSE.

Judge Baird had been chosen Umpire, but coming into the grounds with the cover of a yellow-back novel sticking out of his pocket, he was accused of having Court begins on the second Mondays in May read the rules of the game, and of course was promptly disbarred.

A CONDITIONAL UNITER. Dr Griffin was selected in his place, because he consented to act provided the game should be continued from day to day until an inning on each side was played.

THE BONE OF CONTENTION. Much fuss was made over a uniform, all the members wishing to wear striped stockings, except Rowe and Strother, whose extremities refused to hear of any such arrangement,

A SURGEON EMPLOYED. Dr. Griffin agreed for the sum of eightysix dollars to repair all broken bones, binding htmself to open a hospital at the end of the game. How much he lost will appear later on. THEY GET DOWN TO THEIR WORK. The Cliques went to the bat with Murrell at the home base, and just such batting as he did probably never has been seen, for what he was trying to hit no one M'HENRY SHOWS 'EN A NEW WRINKLE. When the Blackstones came to the bat, it was of course in the person of Capt. McHenry, who had taken the lightning express from Louisvill to be at the game. The gallant Capt. bared his breast towards the pitcher, looking as broad as the main sail of a seventy-four, quite overawing Cox, who held the ball. He struck at the ball by actual count sixtythree times, and then struck it in fact and started-in the wrong direction, and newspaper without money, and hence we in spite of yells, ejaculations, ruling of the umpire, in defiance of everything and everybody, ran the whole circle in the contrary direction, and came in swearing that he knew his business aboard of a boat, and that any fool ought to know which way to run. He was two hours and ten minutes in getting around-that Rev. Mr. Humphrey will preach at the is, what was left when he did get around, for he came in on three legs, saying that some one had hit him with a rock. The crowd were divided, some saying that it was the string-halt, others the bots, and days among her relations in the city of herself. Of course the captain was laid on the shelf.

THE KING BEE. As a player, Walker was par excellence the Ajax Telamon of the game. He ran faster and covered more ground, eaught

MORE OF THE SAME SORT. Wise, Phipps and Rowe are all splendid players, always catching the ball and slips out of his hands.

MORGAN TAKES IT EASY.

Morgan, as a player, was dignified, and never once condescended to go out of a walk, a rare quality in a base ballist, There was more yelling, cries and gesticulating than could be imagined. The results of the game may be succinctly summed up: McHeury, Gregory and Morgan are in the dry docks, getting new timbers, neither of them being able to tell which leg to limp on.

up in ordinary, to have the spars washed down and be refitted. Walker is alongside of the dock, walting for a tanyard to be put up to get enough leather for a new pair of boots. The game was profitable, not costing over $300-in time and repairs-and has at least fifty times since Thursday. Judge Townsend came on the ground but was expelled by the police force betaken for an Irish emigraut just landed. Judge Gregory made only one run and then went home for a lunch. It had been just 23 minutes since he got up from dinner, and somebody told him that a load of water-melons had just come in and in whose behalf a petition for pardon town, and off he darted, like a shot from was recently torwarded to the Governor, a hot shovel.

Clarence Hardwick and Berry Coleman were the only players who knew anything about the game. They were each knocked over about forty times by the awkwardness of the other players him wondering why every body didn't and the principal part of the game con sisted in putting them out. The followis a summary of the game:
